THE HICKMAN COURIER.

The New York Star and Nashville American think that the elected Speaker, and the Courier thinks that he has no chance. The great lights differ.

The courts have decided that a woman is not a person, but that a railroad corporation is. It seems that law and common sense don't always run together.

The prospect of routing Hickman in Virginia grows more promising. His corrupt system of boss rule is the one great blot on Southern politics.

It seems difficult to get a true line between the two parties. Hickman is a man of the future, and the Republicans are a party of the past. Democrats refuse to identify their names as a part of the Butler ticket.

Large amounts of whisky is being sold over the State for from 25 to 50 cents per gallon, subject to the government duty. These sales are owing to the fact that the bonded product has expired, and these lots, the tax is due, the supply is greater than the demand, and distillers are forced to sell.

The National Ice-keepers' Convention opened in Chicago last week. There was great satisfaction expressed by the members over a prospect of a large yield of honey, ever known, especially in the West. The question of what kind of honey was decided in favor of a class between the Italian and Assyrian.

The Next Membership. It is generally conceded by those who know anything about it that Hon. John S. Williams will be his own successor as United States Senator from Kentucky.

They are Both Democrats. From the Louisville Democrat. There is no such distinction between the position of Carlisle and Randall to the practical effect of a Democratic Speaker of the Federal House as to warrant a Kentucky Democratic party in making open war on Carlisle.

Every Kentucky Democrat would feel proud over the election of Mr. Carlisle, but it is equally true that there is nothing in Mr. Randall's record to warrant the needless war that is being waged upon him by some Democratic papers. Such war is not only impotent, but it is also a gross injustice and ingratitude to the ablest and greatest Democratic leader in the American Congress.

Ohio Election and the Tariff. A Washington dispatch, in regard to the Ohio election, says:

In a national sense the election is deemed an important one, because it will prove a warning to the Ohio Democrats. The tariff trade platform will prove anything but judicious in a national campaign. The Ohio platform declared for enough protection to keep from walking over the line to free trade. It has been adopted by the Democracy of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Virginia.

Can't say that we are over-struck on Benjamin Butler for President, but we do believe that he is one of America's ablest statesmen and could better hold the reins of our National Government than any man (Republican or Democrat) in the United States today.

Has the Archer forgotten that Butler was the author and supporter of the terrible Reconstruction Act, by which the whole people of the South were virtually disfranchised, and our local Governments turned over to a horde of carpet-bag robbers, and that he was the chief promoter and proponent of Andrew Johnson, when that great commoner made a heroic stand for the Constitution of our country? Granted that the spoon chase, and all other war issues are ended, Butler did enough after the war, to damn him in the estimation of all good Democrats. Besides, no man ever heard of Butler changing from a Democrat to a Republican, and no man will see the popular tide turning in favor of the Democrats. His ability is acknowledged, but we can't understand how any Democrat, Republican, or Greenbacker, can have any confidence in the man.

Conceded Weapon.

Thus far the Government has shown no disposition to retreat, either in the line of imprisonment in cases for carrying concealed weapons, or in the line of carrying a deadly weapon on the better class of people who are sometimes forced to carry weapons in self-defense. It is a law, and as long as the courts enforce it there is no reason why it should be nullified by the Governor. The better it will be for the General Assembly to repeal it.

There is no criminal reason for repealing this law for it is the most important and necessary on the Statute books. If the General Assembly tampered with this law at all, it is the duty of the people to make it their business to repeal it.

The woman is correct. It is hard indeed for a man, whose passion is the law, to believe that the law is a mere tool to be used at will. It is a law, and as long as the courts enforce it there is no reason why it should be nullified by the Governor. The better it will be for the General Assembly to repeal it.

A Meeting Prophecy.

The New York Times of a recent date contains the following prophecy of what to expect by a woman at a Fulton street prayer meeting. A woman appeared at the Fulton street prayer meeting, Tuesday and announced that she had a message from heaven which she had been commanded to deliver. She was modest and quiet in manner, and nothing but her direct prophecy would lead one to suspect her sanity. The American Catholic prelates, she said, would soon lead to Rome would bring back the Pope with them. Then the Catholics would rise in armed revolt, causing a reign of terror worse than the French revolution. The Pope would be killed before the evening. The Catholics would bring back the Pope to the front and crown him King. The temperance movement would sweep away all the present church organizations, creeds and forms, and the Episcopal clergy, leaving their church, would direct all spiritual affairs. These communications from above this woman said, were written in a book, which the temperance people were to publish in November, after the rebellion had begun, and then the prophecies disappeared.

Next Congressional race in the First District. The telephone predicted soon after the last November election that Oscar Turner would not again seek the people of this district to represent him in Congress, their representative. We think now our advice warranted us in saying that we did not see the author of the recent indications convince us that we were mistaken. The French was a lady in a pink dress, and a person that Mr. Turner is or will be a candidate for reelection. It is correct we will have a lively time next summer. Several distinguished men are being canvassed as probable candidates, and we are credibly informed that in particular who will succeed himself soon after the next Lyon Circuit Court adjourns. He is a help speaker will represent in political view. "Make your bets, gentlemen."

A Good Prospect. From the Kentucky Democrat. The Kentucky then would make a Democratic Speaker of the Federal House in order to gain protection from a few "roughs" but civilisation would be contented with such methods. The law gives the citizen the right to arm and defend himself in such instances as the Illinois cities, and no court will impose an apprehension of danger exists. Repeal your pistol laws, and your good citizens still will not make walking arsenals of themselves, and will be equally liable to be caught at a disadvantage by "roughs" but some "roughs" now restrained by fear of the law, will commence the disgraceful practice. The man who has a pistol, and a revolver, and a deadly weapon without some apprehension of danger to himself, is in heart already an outlaw. It is the future which gives this election its greatest significance, and it fully justifies the gloomy forebodings which Republican leaders look forward to the national contest next year.

There is no good reason why the Republicans who abandoned their party this year should return to the law to the destruction of it. The Republican party is too uniformly and unanimously convinced of the propriety of the Reconstruction act, and the fact that the Republican party of Ohio this year from surviving as adjuncts of the Presidential campaign next year.

Repeal Concealed Weapons. "The colored people of Cincinnati," says the Commercial Gazette, "do not view with alarm the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of the State to allow the white people of the State to allow them the enjoyment of the same rights and privileges which the law was supposed to protect."

Kentucky Education.

"Well, Colonel B," said a friend of education in Kentucky to a member of the Legislature, "I suppose we can have your support this winter?" "But for?" "For our educational interests, of course. We are agitating the question, you know, all over the State." "Dog on your educational interests. I don't want no more of it in my eye." "My dear Colonel, you support it? What makes you talk like that? Are you not in favor of education?" "No, sir, I ain't." "Why not?" "Well, because I ain't. I make more work for me. You see before I was educated all I had to do was to make a cross-stitch for my mother, and I got to wrestle with a plank-hill all an hour, and run my tongue out to preserve it. Now, I'm educated and I can sign my name. (to try some of them) I don't want no more of it in my eye."

A New Tooth. From the Kentucky Democrat. A large ivory tooth, resembling that of a mastodon, or some other large extinct animal, was found by a farmer in the employ of E. Spinks, the sand and gravel dealer, in a pile of stones in a field. It was found in a pile of stones in a field. It was found in a pile of stones in a field. It was found in a pile of stones in a field.

A Legal Question. From the Kentucky Democrat. The Kears-Moore case in the Recorder's Court yesterday was a curious case bearing on the rights of another at a reception. "Oh, no, let's see," said the judge, "I have heard of it, but I don't know it."

What is the matter that way when you read? asked a man from the city of New York, an old newspaper. "How ought I to read, sir?" "Why read without moving your lips?" "What good would that sort of reading do me, for I couldn't hear it? When I read I wonder what I'm reading, but I don't know it."

A gang of Turks, 20 or 30 in number, men, women and children, and many horses and mules, have been camped for several days near Hickman. They are a dirty, filthy set in appearance. They came to town Tuesday night, and have a street exhibition of their dancing bears and monkeys, which attracted the average small boy and colored folks. The show is a nuisance, and only interesting because it is a nuisance.

Last Monday a little colored boy, brown skin, nine years old, and of average height, was seen, miles from his parents' home, in Green, Ky. The boy was sent Monday to carry his father's things, who was then working in a section hand in three miles of home, but before night had moved out to reach home, and only found his boy gone. He at once started on foot in pursuit, and at every toll-gate heard of the boy's passing. He was told that a grey riding a white horse had the boy on the horse behind him.
